OTOLARYNGOLOGY HEAD AND NECK SURGERY

UW Otolaryngology Diversity Visiting Medical Student Program

Program Description

The Otolaryngology Diversity Visiting Medical Student Program is a funded program designed to encourage students from diverse backgrounds the opportunity to experience the exceptional training that the University of Washington Department of Otolaryngology has to offer. Students will spend four weeks with the Department of Otolaryngology at the University of Washington Medical Center, Seattle Children's Hospital, Harborview Medical Center or Puget Sound Veteran's Administrative Hospital and care for a variety of patients in our tertiary care centers. Students will participate in all the duties and functions of a medical student. They will also be expected to attend all scheduled house staff teaching sessions and conferences.

Who Should Apply

Competitive applicants in the Otolaryngology Diversity Visiting Medical Student Program should be strongly motivated to pursue a career in Otolaryngology. The program is open to applicants who demonstrate the above and belong to groups that are recognized as historically underrepresented in the health and science professions including: African American, American Indian, Alaska Native, Hispanic American and Asian/Pacific Islander. Clerkships are four weeks in duration and are available to full-time fourth-year students who are in good standing at LCME-accredited U.S. medical schools.

Program Goals & Resources

Program Goals

- Encourage students to consider a career in Otolaryngology
- Enhance student awareness of opportunities in academic medicine
- Provide specific mentoring and networking for underrepresented students
